

which lands are so located with reference to the location of first party's main canal as to enable second party to divert water from said main canal into second party's irrigation ditches.

It is specifically agreed second party is to receive his supply of water from the first party's canal. That second party shall at his own expense construct necessary ditches to carry his water from first party's canal onto his land. That first party's obligation is limited to conveying in its canal, water available under its appropriations to satisfy the needs of the second party to the extent provided for in this contract, said supply of water to be delivered at such point on the line of said canal as first party may designate.

It is further agreed that if the lands to be supplied with water under this contract are public Federal Government lands, entered or to be entered under Federal Land Laws, including Desert Entries; the second party will comply with all Federal Laws and applicable regulations to enable second party to obtain a patent therefore.

Second party's right to the use of water herein purchased shall consist of the use of that quantity of water which shall be in the same ratio to the whole of said Green River Development Company's water appropriations above enumerated as the number of acres of the aforesaid lands of the second party shall bear to the total number of acres of land for which first party enters into identical contracts with other parties to supply water from the same source. The total number of acres to be supplied with water by first party, shall not exceed 12,000 acres of land authorized to be irrigated under the above described Water Rights, from which said water supply is to be obtained; provided a greater acreage may be supplied with water by first party when the available supply of water is sufficient to supply second party at all times with the maximum quantity of water it is legally entitled to divert and beneficially use under the laws of Wyoming, and the provisions of this contract.
